Several Changes Mark the Reprinting Of Joplin Junior College Catalog for '54

The Joplin Junior College Catalog for 1954-55 has just come off the press and is now available in the office. Students will note several major changes.

A degree of Associate in Arts instead of a diploma will now be offered to those students who fulfill the requirements of the General Culture Curriculum. This curriculum is designed to give the student maximum flexibility in planning his junior college career.

A major change occurs in the English Department where every new student will be required to take an English placement test. The results of this test will be used to schedule students for the classes from which they will receive the most benefit. Anyone deficient in mechanics will be placed in sections meeting five days a week. A student making an exceptionally high score on this test may substitute Exposition for the three-day-a-week English I. Exposition is the advanced composition course which the average college student is permitted to take only at the sophomore level.

Colleges Are Like Cafeterias

One day in moments of reverie my thoughts wandered upon the comparison of a college to a cafeteria. I was surprised at the association, but I believe they have much in common.

In a cafeteria there is a wide variety of food, some tasty and some not so tasty. This can very well be true of a college. Some subjects are enjoyable; others are undesirable. In fact, they may even give one an imaginary case of indigestion.

But, there is one advantage in particular to eating in a cafeteria. You are able to take what you want and leave what you don't want. In college you have this same opportunity. You can choose your own curriculum, your own choice of educational food, and you can choose the exact amount you wish to receive.

One disadvantage to eating in a cafeteria is that you are likely to take more than you care to eat. This is also a problem in college. We see all the possibilities of a subject but later to our sorrow we find we are not capable of exploiting these possibilities.

Most of us enjoy eating in cafeterias, and most of us enjoy college. We might profit, however, by observing this comparison. Let's choose our educational food with the same care that we choose our natural food. Let's eat and digest all that we put on our educational plate.

Sculpture Exhibit Features Mediums Of Leading Artists

Whether you took a keen interest in those art works or not, perhaps you would like to know a little bit more about the April exhibit.

This particular exhibit was one in a series of art exhibits which are sent from one college to another for a month's showing. We had on display ten works of sculpture, executed in the several mediums of aluminum, bronze, wood, and terra cotta by four leading women sculptors of our time. Each of these women has had a thorough background of training in the art field, some having studied abroad and all of them in New York City.

Three of the women — Mrs. Anna Hyatt Huntington, Mrs. Frances Mallory Morgan, and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Sears currently have studios and are working in New York City. Mrs. Huntington is quite well-known for her famous interpretation of Joan of Arc which stands on Riverside drive in New York City. Mrs. Morgan, whose original home is in Memphis, Tennessee, recently sold a huge fountain piece to that city. Each of these artists has held one-man shows in the largest galleries and has won awards for her work in the field of art.

Two Missouri Novels Appear in One Book

Post-war Missouri is the scene of two action-filled novels by ex-State resident Frank Gruber. The war, of course, is the one between the states.

One of the novels, Quantrell's Raiders, tells the little-known story of a West Pointer who went underground in the Missouri border region. He was a guerrilla fighter who led a band of Missourians between and around the law. "I have personally covered the ground of every engagement described in the story," says author Gruber.

Rebel Road (originally titled Outlaw) is the second Gruber story of the duo. It has sparks of Wyatt Earp and the James Boys flashing through it, but closely follows the tale of a returned soldier who made border country history.

A unique feature of the two novels is that they are printed so that you can read one story, flip the book over and have the whole new cover and title to wade into. These back-to-back stories are in a new Ace edition, for sale (thirty-five cents) at news stands everywhere.

President and Dean Fly To Chicago for Meeting

Dr. Maurice Litton and Mr. Roi S. Wood, president of the College, attended the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools from March 23 to March 26 in Chicago, Illinois. The theme of the conference was "Education's Responsibilities for Freedom."

According to Dr. Litton, the highlight of the meeting was a speech by Mr. Robert R. Hamilton of the University of Wyoming. The theme of his speech was "Some Legal Limitations on Freedom of Education."

Hoping We Do As Well

With the approach of the Alumni-Student banquet, our thoughts turn for the second time in our school year to those students who previously walked the halls of Joplin Junior College. We look around us and see everywhere former students of J. J. C. who are now successful businessmen, professional men, and housewives.

Some have already made news on the national scene, and a few on the international. One alumnus in India helped to care for the injured in the recent stampede at the Hindu Religious Festival. Constantly we receive information through letters and newspapers of people who have graduated from Joplin Junior College that are already well-known in their fields.

We who are looking forward to a graduation from Joplin Junior College are given a stronger incentive to strive for success by those who have gone before us. Our hope is that in the future, our accomplishments will be such that we can measure them favorably with the success of graduates of past years.

Spring Focuses Attention on Fashions

As spring has emerged, we've dug down into the closets of moth balls and come up with our spring and summer clothing of years past. As we look at it, we have a sudden feeling that we would like to discard it all and start over on a warm weather wardrobe, for, in a state of unstarched and unpressed wrinkleness, our ice cream colored cottons lack the appeal that they had for us last summer. But, before purchasing a new wardrobe, let us take stock of the fashions that will be right again this year and see what is really new.

The basic things of your wardrobe, skirts and blouses, are still good. Sleeveless blouses of tailored and frilly styles can be matched with those very bright full skirts or pencil straight skirts. A new chic feature this year is blouses with matching gloves.

The tailored suit is always a good style, and the duster still holds its top place among fashions. An added feature is a straight sheath dress which either matches the duster, or its lining.

The full-skirted dark dress with a portrait neckline in navy blue with white polka dots, as worn by one of our "Pretty Pats" seated in the picture, is very good for dress-up occasions. Add the newest stiff net on crinoline petticoat in some bright color and you have your spring and early summer "Sunday" dress.

For later in the summer season the perpetually popular organdy and dotted swiss will still go this year, if it tops one of those stand-out petticoats.

The princess style dress with the tiny-waisted look is being carried over from our winter fashions into summer cottons and linens. We see this style displayed by the standing Pat in our picture. Her princess cut dress is in a plaid faille which gives the tiny-waisted look, and sports a peter pan collar and a big girl tie.

The chapeaux modeled in our picture are typical—tiny with a bit of veil and sometimes sporting minute flowers on a stand up feather.

After the New York Yankees announced last October that they had ended their working agreement with the Joplin Miners baseball club, Joplin was without professional baseball for the first time since 1945.

This didn't set too well with district baseball fans and they immediately raised a cry against the injustice of the New York baseball officials. Some of those that yelled the loudest, however, were the ones who had remained at home last year while the Miners were playing in Joplin. Those who had really supported the club just shook their heads as they pondered the loss of the club that had turned out such major leaguers as Mickey Mantle, Johnny Lindell, Sherman Lollar, Johnny Sturm and Al Gerhauser.

Obtain Cardinal Backing

Since the club was losing money and attendance marks had been falling, the prospect for finding other major league support seemed pretty dim to officials of the Miners. After several disappointing attempts, however, Carrol Fay, Paul Stubblefield and several Joplin businessmen were able to secure the backing of the St. Louis Cardinals.

After Fay and Stubblefield had explained to August C. Busch, president of the Cardinals, that the principal reason for the poor attendance marks here for the last three years was the lack of a Western Association pennant contender, Busch guaranteed that the Cardinal farm bosses would provide Joplin with a top group of players for the 1954 season.

When the spring training season opened, several players were assigned to Joplin and sent to the Albany, Georgia, training camp to get ready for the season. Bill Kelly, former manager in the Pacific and International leagues, was called out of retirement and named to pilot the Joplin club, which had been renamed the Cardinals.

Kelly and his fledgling Redbirds then proceeded to build up an impressive-looking team during the training schedule and came into Joplin with an exhibition record of 13 wins, five losses and three ties.

From all appearances, it seems as though the Cardinals have carried out their part of the bargain. The Western Association season opens Sunday, and Joplin has a team to field. The rest of the agreement is in the hands of the Joplinites.

The future of professional baseball in Joplin hangs in balance this year. If the new Cardinals get no more backing than the Miners did last year, the people of Joplin may as well kiss their beloved, but deserted, club goodbye.

Triple Trio Out for Track

Nine boys reported to Coach Dudley Stegge for track workouts at the opening of this month. The nine were Bill Agan, Tom Hosfield, Dick Hammond, Don Woods, Tom Gerwert, Bill Brown, Jim Allan and Bill Terry.

The tracksters have been holding their workouts at the Junge stadium track.

Former J. J. C. Cager Now Coaches

Joplin's Juco Basketball Squad

For the last two years, the "sixth" man on Joplin's Junior College basketball squad hasn't scored a point and, even more, hasn't taken a single shot. In fact, since he doesn't suit up, all he does is ride the bench. The 6-4 giant, however, appears to be the answer to any coach's dream, and perhaps that's the trouble — he is the coach.

Don Testerman came to Joplin Juco in 1952 as head basketball coach and assistant football mentor. The College wasn't new to him, however, since he is an alumnus of J.J.C. and had played ball here during the 1944-45 season and during the latter half of the 1946-47 season. During his two years here as coach, his cage teams have built up a record of 27 wins and 32 losses and last year finished in a first-place tie with Hannibal-LaGrange in the Missouri Public Junior College Conference.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Testerman of Carterville, Don started his basketball career in 1939 in the seventh grade when he played his first game for Carterville Junior High School. The tall youth seemed to get along well in sports and during his next four years in Carterville, Don earned three high school basketball letters, under Jiggs Mikkelsen and T. R. Anderson, and three football monograms.

At the end of his junior year in 1943, Don moved to Webb City and in his senior year lead the Cardinals of Coach Lonnie Adams to a Big Eight Conference championship. He played center and forward for the Webb City squad.

Played With Navy

Following his graduation in 1944, Don came to Joplin Junior College where he captained the Lions under Coach Charles Osborne for the entire season. But a fellow by the name of Uncle Sam needed the lanky center more than the Lions did and in May, 1944, Don joined the navy.

With rank of pharmacist's mate, Don toured the United States for the navy for nearly a year before being assigned to the center position on the San Diego, California Naval Training Center quintet. Keeping pace with all the other teams that Don played for, the training center squad also won a championship—the West Coast Conference championship in 1946.

In January, 1947, Don received his honorable discharge and returned to Joplin Junior College.

He came back to the hardwoods for the Lions of Coach Linn Stair in a blaze, too, and he set the nets on fire with 67 points in his first four games. With Don and Bob Adams as co-captains that year, the Lions finished with a 9-and-2 conference record and their only undisputed MPJCC championship.

After the red-hot 1946-47 season, Don and teammate John Goostree were named to the conference all-star squad.

The following May, Don enrolled at Southwest Missouri State at Springfield and attended school there until September, 1948, when he transferred to Pittsburg State Teachers College. He was graduated from K.S.T.C. in May, 1949, but returned for post-graduate work and received his master's degree in education last summer.

Married J. J. C. Coed

His interests, however, weren't confined to basketball and school, so on October 8, 1949, he married Charlotte Sayers of Joplin whom he had met at Junior College. The couple now live in Webb City and have two children, Mike, three, and Patty, two.

Don took his first coaching job in 1949 as head basketball, football, and baseball mentor at Zook High School in Larned, Kansas. During his three years there, his teams took two seconds in their basketball loop, scored two seconds and a third in football, and won the league title in baseball each year.

After piloting the Lions to a sensational season this year, Don is looking forward to a summer of fishing and golfing before getting down to shaping up another top Junior College cage contender for Joplin next year.

Nealy, Humphrey On All-Star Team

Center Eddie Nealy and Guard Dick Humphrey of Joplin Junior College have been named to the 10-man all-star team of the Missouri Public Junior College Conference.

Nealy was Joplin's leading scorer during the 1953-54 season and Humphrey was runner-up. Racking up his points on twisting jump shots and tip-ins, Nealy had a 16.7 average in conference play and an 18.9 average for the season. Humphrey, who was particularly deadly on long set shots and driving layups, averaged 16.5 points in both conference and non-conference competition.

Gain Split at Miami

Joplin Junior College's golf team scored an easy 11-1 victory but the Lion's tennis squad dropped four practice singles matches to Northeastern Oklahoma A. & M. College at Miami, April 6.

Randall Bishir, Jim Harvey, and Bill Fowks posted 3-0 golf triumphs and Eddie Nealy won his match 2-1. The match was the first of the season for the juco golfers of Coach Dudley Stegge.

Dick Humphrey, Joplin's number one tennis player, battled Statham through three sets before bowing 9-7, 6-4 and 4-6. Larry DuVall bowed to George 3-6 and 1-6. Ronnie Wilson was beaten 0-6, 0-6 by Wiley, and Dahl turned back Terry Lacey, 6-0 and 6-0.

The Moberly Greyhounds, national junior college champions who downed Joplin in the finals of the national regional, placed three men on the all-star squad. They were Jim Carey, Bill Wynn, and Dana Sharp. Moberly finished in the fourth slot in the league behind Hannibal-LaGrange, Joplin, and Jefferson City.

Other players named to the team, announced by Frank W. Carter, conference executive-secretary, were Ron Fischer and Bill Bradley, Hannibal-LaGrange; Bill Rose, St. Joseph; and Stan Sapp and Pete Butler, Jefferson City.

Lion Netters Stop Kansas Greyhounds

Joplin's Juco tennis squad continued its mastery over Fort Scott Junior College last Tuesday as the Lions downed the Greyhound netters 4-2, on the Landreth Park clay courts.

The Lions swept both doubles matches and divided the four singles events. The triumph was the second straight over Fort Scott for the Lions. Joplin won an earlier match on the Kansans' court by the same 4-2 margin.

Ronald Wilson and Dick Humphrey won in the singles matches while Larry DuVall and Jim Harvey were being whipped. Wilson downed Weil, 6-1 and 6-0, and Humphrey outlasted Carlson, 10-8 and 8-6.

In the doubles event, Humphrey and DuVall teamed up to defeat Jerry Vogt and Gary Myers, 6-4 and 7-5. Wilson and Harvey blasted Carlson and Dody, 6-3 and 6-1.
